Lets Taxes on Property Lapse.

A strange condition of affairs was brought to light yesterday when the guardianship matter of Kealchackalami, a minor, was heard before the First

Bold Scheme To Divorce Her and Get a Big Fortune in New England.

Thomas Evans, once well known in Honolulu, who went to Manila when the war in the Philippines was under way, and established himself in business there, has been heard from in Hartford, Conn., under circumstances which are certain to place a wealthy young heiress of that city in an embarrassing position. Mrs. Evans and her children did not accompany her husband on this trip to Mantia, and although the latter did well in many business ventures in the Philippines. business ventures in the Philippines capital, yet his wife here seemed to be farther and farther away from his thoughts as the weeks passed. When Coionel Mills, of the Sixth Artillery, left for the seat of war, he was tn-structed to inform Mr. Evans that he would be sued for a divorce upon an arrangement of certain financial ar-

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 15.—After a memorable struggle, which has continued for several years, M. S. Quay, regular Republican nominee for United States Senator, was neminated today by the Pennsylvania Legislature to fill the vacance of the steamer Maul for a trip to another island. She asked one of the officers of the ship if he knew term on March 4, 1899. His combined vote in the Senate and House was 130, or three more than the number necessary to elect. The Senate and House who had already offered himse'r to the $600,000 heiress, and the next mail to Hartford carried a letter whose contents have undoubtedly proved the Waterloo of the former Honolulan. At the same time the wife had re-ceived a letter from her recreant husband saying that after all he thought they should obtain a divorce, and in order to save her trouble, he would procure it in Rhode Island. He was $80,000 in debt, but had b.g schemes on. He thought it better for all concerned that the divorce be obtained. For himself he did not in end to marry again, but that foot and hand free, he could put his whole soul into his business. As for the children, he promised they would be well provided for; there need be no fear of that, he said. The wife took the letter to a well known attorney who handles her af-fairs, and he emphatically stated "Not much," and sent the husbands letter much," and sent the husband a letter which told him that he couldn't pull the wool over their eyes as easily as he hoped for. In the next mail the wife received a divorce summoris from a Rhode Island court in which she was charged with "wi.ful desertion." This was turning the tables to an extent which even the attorney could not brook, and a letter, tingling with sarcasm, rebuke and a few pointers in law was despatched to him, and the chances are that the golden $600,000 is fast fading away from the Honoiulan's sight by this time. and sent the husband a letter

SAILORS' DEATH IS MYSTERIOUS

Chemical Examination of Stomach and Blood Show Suffocation.

It now appears that the man who was found dead in bed at the Sailors' Home came to his end through poison. There were no signs that the man had died in any other way than through apoplexy or heart disease until a postmortem examination was made. In the event of its being proved that death was due to poisoning, the police will have a job on their hands in which considerable mystery will figure.

It has developed that the man answers the description of one J. Shaanan, who arrived here on the Miowera an, who arrived here on the Miowera from Canada the other day.

The coroner's jury in the case met yesterday at noon, but was unable to finish, as Dr. Shorey has not yet had time to complete his examination for poisons. Dr. Pratt has stated that the heart of the dead man showed signs of disease, although not sufficiently so to make it at all certain that he died as the result of trouble with his heart. Some traces of poison were found. Some traces of poison were found, and Dr. Shorey is engaged in trying to find what the poison was. A man by the name of E. L. Straut has testified The facts, as nearly as could be learned, were as follows: About so clock yesterday morning the officer, who is a young man, and one who has shown the greatest bravery on the field of bettle in the Philipping of the country and that he was going to Hilo on the country and that he was going to Hilo on the country and that he was going to Hilo on the country and that he was going to Hilo on the country and that he was going to Hilo on the country and that he was going to Hilo on the country and that he was going to Hilo on the country and that he was going to Hilo on the country and that he was going to Hilo on the country and that he was going to Hilo on the country and the coun and that he was going to Hilo on the next steamer. while previous. In fact, the officer to whom he had spoken had intended to go up town with his friend, and was waiting for him while he went into his cabin.

After a little while, getting tired of waiting outside and being in a hurry to go up town, the waiting man knocked at the door of the cabin door and told his friend to hurry up. There was no answer and, thinking that perhaps the man had gone to sleep, he opened the door and found his friend lying back in his bunk with a very peculiar expression upon his face. He took hold of him and attempted to arouse him, but without success. Becoming a armed and believing that the ecutors, yesterday made formal application for the appointment of P. Dawson then for the appointment of P. Dawson then for the appointment of P. Dawson the man-with-eyes-in-his-head, "I have noticed that among the preventance of the minor's estate in Hawaii, able diseases the greater number are thonolulus in 1896, and that he holds in the state of the minor was born in due to mistakes in cating and drinkcoroner's jury meets again tomorrow, when it is expected that Dr. Shorey will have completed his examination of the contents of the stomach of the > Chemist Shorey stated yesterday that Chemist Shorey stated yesterday that from the appearance of the stomach there had evidently been an irritant poison in it, for it was seamed where the ridges had contracted, leaving the spaces between clear and almost in a normal condition. When the contents were removed from the stomach these rritated ridges were red; now they are black. This gave him the impression instantly that something besides heart disease was responsible for the man's death.

One of the strangest of the phenomena connected with the sailor's mysterious demise is the condition of his blood. During the post-mortem, when the skull was opened, the blood was almost in the condition of that found in a living man. When the physicians jaid him upon the slab his face was dark and purplish, and with every in-dication of death having ensued from suffocation. As the process of remov-ing the skull was being performed, and the blood ran from the orifice, it was noticed that the blood actually left the dead man's face which took on the paldead man's face which took on the pal-lor usual with dead men.

The strange action of the blood was observed by the physicians, and the chemist took particular note of it. From the heart and the abdominal cavity he also scooped up some of the band, which he denosited in a glass bood, which he deposited in a glass

jar. Yesterday the blood was in the same condition, thin and liquid, and of the color of crushed raspberries. It had not coagulated in the least in the twenty-four hours during which it had stood. Blood usually coagulates in a few minutes after being removed from a body, but that taken from the sailor Shaanan had not thickened at all, nor has soum formed over the surface. In Dr. Shorey's opinion the case has many puzzling features, and some which are
